"I love it. A great routine and an absolute fooler"

- Sal Piancte

Lars is an absolute genius when it comes to the magic he creates. The routines and effects are not only entertaining but thoroughly fooling too. You really don't stand a chance working his uncanny abilities out. Memo Man Returns is yet another example of his diabolical thinking and a routine I fell will find its way into many magicians repertoires. Highly recommend."

- Andy Smith

"This is just impossible - Great Effect."

- Nicola McBride

Memo Man Returns

Effect:

The cards are shuffled by a spectator.

The performer will memorize all the cards that are dealt in the piles and all the positions of all the cards.

The cards are dealt into 2 piles (or up to 10 piles) face up.

While the performer turns his/her head away, the spectators turn a card face down in each pile. Then the piles are turned face down and the piles are stacked together to one pile. Then the cards are mixed so everything is a big chaos. Face up into face-down cards. The performer takes the deck under the table, and asks which card the spectators are thinking of. Now the performer turns all the other cards face down so only the selected cards are face up. It looks like the performer has an incredible memory, that he/she knows where all the cards are in the deck. Easy to do. You can do it with a borrowed deck.

No marked cards.

You can use a borrowed deck.
