

TV Card Frame

A card is selected and shuffled back into a pack. The performer displays a frame with two clear sheets, rubber banded together. The pack is tossed towards the frame, and the selected card immediately appears, sandwiched between the clear sheets. These are removed from the frame, and a spectator may himself open the bands, and remove the card from between the glass sheets. An incredible illusion, where it appears that the selected card visibly penetrates right through the glass sheet.

- The deck of card is not included.