

Silk Thru Phone by Jeimin Lee

The magician borrows a mobile phone from a spectator and turns it on. He then holds a silk in front of the lit screen. Then, very visually he pulls the silk right through the center of the screen. Immediately he hands back the spectator's phone, leaving everybody completely astonished!

- This is the original Jeimin Lee version.
- Together with the special gimmick also a 45cm (18") silk is supplied.
- Easy and practical to do, this trick has a shocking impact on the spectators.
- The instructions are supplied through a practical download link. They are also in English, but easily understandable by anybody thanks to the clear video.
