

Flower Production

Show three different colored silks holding them in your fist by their corners. One at a time separate them out and throw them up in the air so everyone can see (implicitly) that you are not hiding anything.

When all three silks are brought back to their original position, the lower corners are drooped over a stand and instantly a wonderful bouquet appears.

A wonderful opening effect!