

Predicta Colour

The magician writes something on a slip of paper, folds it and hands it cover to a spectator to hold. He takes out some chips which have different colours on their two sides. A spectator is requested to stack the chips so that same colours face one another. When full stack is completed, the prediction is opened and read aloud. It is seen that the magician has correctly predicted the two end colours of the stack.

- A pocket sized effect to always carry around with you.
- Immediately repeatable with an always different outcome.