

Bill Tube

The magician borrows a bill from a spectator, asks him to sign it and roll it up. He then makes the bill disappear right under the baffled eyes of the audience. Now he gives the spectator an elegant brass tube, closed by a cap and a padlock. The spectator opens the tube with a key, and takes the cap off. Incredibly inside the tube, the previously vanished signed banknote will be found.

- The tube is 9.5 cm high and has a diameter of approximately 2.5 cm.
- This quality item is made with great attention to details, out of brass.
