

Akronym - Bühnentrick

Impromptu, reliable, and phenomenal.

Imagine this: a spectator, Jade, rolls an imaginary die, and decides that the result is 3. Then, with her phone, she consults any Wikipedia article out of millions, for example The Beatles. She sees that there are links to other pages, in this case Liverpool, Rock, John Lennon, Album, etc... Then, she clicks on a link to navigate randomly from page to page; all her choices are noted down gradually. For example:

MAJORITY
STATISTICS
RADIO
SPECIES

The magician then circles the 3rd letter of each word, to reveal JADE.

Key Points:

• This is not an app!

There is nothing to download, secretly install, or update.

• Completely original effect.

Your spectators have never seen a similar effect, which allows you to stand out from other mentalists who mostly perform mind-reading.

• The phone is borrowed.

You can perform it in any circumstances, it only requires a spectator to have a phone with an internet connection.

• You have nothing to hide.

Akronym is natural and fluid to perform. All actions are performed in front of the spectators. You never have to hide the phone screen, no NFC tag, QR code, or strange URL to secretly type. The spectator will suspect absolutely nothing.

• Nothing in your pockets, 7-minute routine.

You don't have to carry anything with you, not even your own mobile phone.

Whether you're in close-up, on stage, or in a situation where you didn't even plan to perform something, you have a 7-minute routine at your disposal.

Akronym quotes

"I love it!" - Christian Grace

"That is literally incredible!" - Lloyd Barnes

"That is sick. I love it!" - Peter Turner

"Akronym checks all the boxes for me - practical, versatile, and devastating." -
Doug McKenzie

"Wait! What!? How!?! Sooooooo good! I was totally fooled by the performance and I'm equally stunned by the method. 11 out of 10." - Mark Elsdon

Imagine you've got nothing on you, not even your cell phone, and you want to present an effect: instead of a quick trick, Akronym lets you perform a real routine.

You're a close-up performer and you want an impactful and personal effect, that's comfortable to present, and requires no pocket space: Akronym will immediately find its place in your repertoire!

If you're on stage in front of a large corporate audience and want a personalized revelation of the company's name: Akronym is ideal.
