

Food to Go 2.0 by Twister Magic - Bühnentrick

10 years after its original release, George Iglesias' Food to Go 2.0 is back, better than ever!

Imagine being able to magically prepare a real HAMBURGER and FRIES from a menu! Or a can of PRINGLES and a bar of SNICKERS! Or a pair of headphones. Now you can customize it for any other object or menu you want. Made with the best materials, very resistant and with a matte finish designed to last forever. A very powerful effect that will establish the role of the magician in a matter of seconds! A classic of magic completely revisited, expertly adapted to modern times by George Iglesias.

Inspired by the Grant effect invented by the University of Florida in 1945 and known as the Temple Screen. The trick has been completely redesigned, with 5 panels instead of 4, plus 7 neodymium magnets that will help you achieve this effect with ease, for perfect alignment.

Get incredible reactions! A trick that flattens out... but plays big! Use it for the stage, the hall, for children, for restaurant magic, if you are a presenter, for comedy and much more! Ready to use! Includes the menu ready for you and downloadable files to print and attach, including: a snack catalog and a technology catalog. Yes! Now you can customize it to your preferences. Online instructional video included with all the new techniques and ideas.

Effect 1: (Hamburger and French Fries) Display a menu from both sides, showing different dishes and options, then present the three main dishes on the menu and ask the audience to name their favorites. Turn the menu over, fold it into a triangle, stick your hand inside and, as if by magic, a hamburger and French fries will materialize from the image. Now open the menu to see that the image of the hamburger and French fries has disappeared!

Effect 2: (Pringles and Snickers) Display a snack menu from both sides, showing different foods and options, then present the top three snacks on the menu and ask the audience to indicate their favorite. Turn the menu over, fold it into a triangle, stick your hand in, and as if by magic, a real Pringles can and a Snickers bar will materialize from the image. Now open the menu to see if the Pringles and Snickers images have disappeared!

Effect 3: (Headphones) Display a technology catalog from both sides, showing different electronics and options, then present the top three electronics in the catalog and ask the audience to indicate their favorite option. Turn the menu over, fold it into a triangle, stick your hand in, and as if by magic, real headphones will materialize from the image. Now open the menu to see if the headphones image has disappeared!

Effect 4 and more: Customize it however you like!

With Food to Go 2.0 you will learn in the video how to customize your menu to magically produce any product you want!

"This is a great routine. You can also show both sides of the menu and not show anything to the audience. This could certainly be a good opening routine, although it is not a given. This is a great activity for children and adults who love art. There are many ways to use it and it could also be a great MC routine. I like the idea of â€‹â€‹performing and saying that I have been running all day without being able to eat anything and then pulling out the burger and fries." – Paul Romhany - Vanish Magazine

"Food to Go 2.0 is the perfect trick for the stage, living room or children's parties. This trick combines my two favorite hobbies: magic and eating burgers!" – Magic Orthodoxy Review.

"Food to Go 2.0 is a handy production tool that is perfect for magicians and event presenters to make just about anything. The food is definitely a clever touch, as you can invite a spectator to taste a burger to prove it's the real thing. Let them keep that cold can of Pringles! But that said, the limit is your imagination! You'll have a blast with this one." – Ning, NingThing.com
